Investments to consist primarily of short-duration, high quality fixed income mutual funds, money market funds and ETFs. Investment-grade individual bonds, CDs and Treasury securities may also be purchased with maturity not to exceed 12-months.

Low-volatility mutual funds and ETFs that have historically exhibited volatility as measured by standard deviation and maximum drawdown not to exceed 120% of the Bloomberg Barclays Aggregate Bond Index may be used to add diversification, up to a limit of 20% of the portfolio. The advisor will maintain documentation showing that volatility measures were updated and reviewed as of the date of purchase, and the impact of these investments will be summarized for the board on a quarterly basis.

Intermediate-term bond funds including Core bonds funds, TIPs and global bond funds typically offer a greater total return potential than short-term bonds and may be held, limited to 30% of the portfolio.

High-yield bond funds, including those with limited duration offer greater income potential with increased credit risk and volatility and may be held, limited to 10% of the portfolio. (If an ETF like JNK is used, the advisor may sell covered call options to help hedge risks and add additional income potential).

Section 23. Investment Policies and Guidelines

Bank Loan / Floating Rate funds generally do well in a strong economic environment when interest rates are rising and may be held, limited to 20% of the portfolio.

23.5.2 RESERVES FUND

This account is used primarily to offset occasional shortfalls in Working Capital and to fund future projects and currently unforeseen needs. The bulk of these assets may not be needed for at least three to five years. The goal is to allow the association to build reserves that may help weather lean periods or invest to support future goals and needs. The benchmark will be used to monitor both risk (Standard Deviation and Maximum Drawdown) and return with the goal of achieving a greater risk adjusted total return than the benchmark after fees and expenses on a rolling three-year basis.

23.5.2.1 ALLOWABLE INVESTMENTS FOR RESERVES FUND

Benchmark: a weighted average of 30% S&P500 index, 25% MSCI All Country World Index, 35% Bloomberg Barclays Aggregate Bond Index, and 10% 90-day US Treasury Bills.

Investments to include a significant allocation to short-duration, high quality fixed income mutual funds, money market funds and ETFs. Investment-grade individual bonds, CDs and Treasury securities may also be purchased with maturity not to exceed 36-months.

Low-volatility mutual funds and ETFs that have historically exhibited volatility as measured by standard deviation and maximum drawdown not to exceed 120% of the Bloomberg Barclays Aggregate Bond Index may be used to add diversification up to a limit of 30% of the portfolio. The advisor will maintain documentation showing that volatility measures were updated and reviewed as of the date of purchase and the impact of these investments will be summarized for the board on a quarterly basis.

Intermediate-term bond funds including Core bonds funds, TIPs and global bond funds typically offer a greater total return potential than short-term bonds and may be held, limited to 50% of the portfolio.

High-yield bond funds, including those with limited duration offer greater income potential with increased credit risk and volatility and may be held, limited to 20% of the portfolio. (If an ETF like JNK is used, the advisor may sell covered call options to help hedge risks and additional income potential).

Bank Loan / Floating Rate funds generally do well in a strong economic environment when interest rates are rising and may be held, limited to 30% of the portfolio.

Stock-based mutual funds and ETFs offer growth potential and the potential for dividend income. The historical performance of Stocks has been greater than fixed income, offset by greater volatility. Stock based mutual funds may be held, limited to 50% of the portfolio. The advisor may include sector funds but should consider fees and expenses, historical risk and performance, overall portfolio diversification and other factors when selecting stock funds for the portfolio. (When ETFs are used, advisor may sell covered call options to hedge risks and generate income).

Balanced and allocation funds include both stocks and fixed income and may be held, limited to 30% of the portfolio. Total stock exposure including stock-based funds, balanced funds and any individual stock holdings should not exceed 70% of the portfolio.

Individual stocks are riskier than stock mutual funds and ETFs because they are less diversified but also offer greater control (advisor selects which companies to own and avoid) and lower cost. Individual stocks are limited to 3% of the portfolio per security and 15% of the total portfolio. (Advisor may sell covered call options to hedge risks and generate income).

Alternative mutual funds and ETFs like REITs and Gold can add diversification and improve risk adjusted performance. These may be held, limited to 20% of the portfolio.

To the extent options are included in the portfolio, advisor will track and report the results of options-based activity to the board in a brief memorandum on a quarterly basis.

Section 25. Reserve Policy Task Force Addendum I to Financial Policies

SECTION 25. RESERVE POLICY TASK FORCE ADDENDUM I TO FINANCIAL POLICIES

25.1 POLICY

The task force recommends that the reserve level be set at six (6) months. The current reserve level should be determined using the C.A.R. method of reserve calculation. This calculation determines how many months an operation can survive off of their net liquid assets if no revenue from operations were ever produced again and with no reductions in current spending levels.

25.2 GUIDELINES

It was our intention that in setting a reserve level that Association operates with a positive cash flow. Negative cash flow levels should be examined if they continue beyond three (3) months with any adjustments as necessary made after formal review by Budget and Finance and approved by the Board of Directors. These adjustments would be made, when approved, to maintain as much of the six (6) month reserve as possible, with rebuilding and maintaining this reserve of utmost importance when an excess cash flow situation exists.

Section 27. Records Retention Policy

SECTION 27 RECORDS RETENTION POLICY

27.1 OVERVIEW

It is in the best interests of Association that it provides for the orderly management of records created, received and maintained by Association. It is the intention of Association to retain records for the longest period of time required by any applicable law or circumstance.

The following issues should be considered when determining which records to retain and the appropriate retention periods:

Litigation

All electronic documents should be stored in a read-only format or other unalterable formats to demonstrate that the documents are in their original state. These records may also be entrusted to Association counsel for retention.

Privacy & Document Destruction

Certain documents, such as employment records, are governed by state or federal privacy laws. Association must comply with those laws, including any rules or restrictions governing storage and destruction of such documents.

Applicability of Statutes

The legal requirements for Association record retention vary based on a variety of factors. Some employment statutes apply only to a company that has the required minimum numbers of employees.

Statutes of Limitations

Various statutes establish different time frames for a company's obligations regarding documents and deadlines for complaining parties to bring claims. IRS audits are generally initiated within three years. However, the IRS may audit a tax return seven years after filing if negligence was involved and indefinitely in cases of tax fraud.

Periodic Policy Review

Association should periodically review and seek legal counsel regarding applicable statutes and adjust this policy accordingly.

27.2 PURPOSE

This policy balances five goals:

- 1. Organized retention of important records for reference, retrieval, and future use;
- 2. Compliance with federal and state law;
- 3. Risk management to protect Association, its Directors, Members and employees from liability;
- 4. Preservation of records in event of litigation; and,
- 5. Reduction in document volume to reduce storage and document administration costs.

27.3 SCOPE

The records subject to this policy include "hardcopy" documents (i.e. tangible paper with visible information printed, written or copied onto it), and electronic data information (both visible and audio) which is created, transmitted or stored within and out of Association's premises in electronic systems (i.e. computers, desk telephones, cell telephones, PDAs, Blackberries, and other personal electronic devices, photocopiers, facsimile machines).
